MAKING MONEY FOR CO.

Board of Review Makes Large Raises in Properties of North Shore Residents

ONE RAISED $100,000.00

One Case Where Big Highland Park Estate Has Never Been on the Tax Books at All

The Lake County Board of Review is certainly making things lively for the rich North Shore people and, when the work is completed, it is believed that over a million and a half dollars will have been added to the tax rolls of Lake county through the efforts of this year's board. The efforts are not unjust, they are merely a case where the board has insisted on getting people on the books who have never before paid just taxes, where many had assessments too small, etc.

The board made a discovery Wednesday morning that the big estate of Mary R. Turnley of Highland Park has never been on the tax books at all and the board thus put down the small item of $130,002 full value for the estate.

Calvin Durand personally appeared before the board, after being summoned and after being questioned about his personal property, voluntarily allowed a raise to be made of $60,000, making his total assessment at present, $79,655.

The Frank J. Rumsey estate was raised considerably, the amount now fixed being $75,000.

Edward L. Baker, through a representative, appeared before the board and the members finally decided that his assessment of $8,721 was much too small and they changed it to $108,567.

F. Herman Gade of Chicago and Lake Forest, sent a letter to the board stating that he would appear before its members today (Thursday) and ask to be relieved of his personal property assessment in Lake county on the grounds that he is no longer a citizen of the United States, having taken up citizenship in Norway, into whose diplomacy service he is soon to enter. The board will likely relieve him of his tax.

George H. Holt's case has not been disposed of. He is the millionaire who is fighting hard to avoid a tax in Lake county on the grounds that he is resident of California, that he lives in the Holt homestead at Lake Forest but does not own a cent's worth of personal property there.

The Chicago Telephone Company has been raised 100 per cent in many of the townships of the county and the total raise for this company will be surprisingly large.

The total raise on the ice houses owned by Chicago firms is $129,500. The companies affected are making a hard protest and will likely fight the raise. The companies raised include these: Knickerbocker, Armour & Co., Morris & Co., F. G. Ruh, Oetting Bros., California Ice Co.

CHILD'S LIFE SAVED BY CAT

Sleeping With Infant, Pet Received Death Thrust Delivered by Insane Father.

In the St. Germain quarter of Paris a little French child owes its small life to the liking of the family cat for the little one's warm, soft bed. Owing to the animal's presence there beneath the blankets what would have been a ghastly tragedy became almost farcical.

The child's father, once a prosperous merchant, had come down through speculation, and by constant brooding over his reverses became insane. He imagined that Beelzebub had promised to direct him to a spot where hidden treasure was concealed, providing the blood of a child was offered to him. Accordingly one night recently Grenard, the person in question, rose from his bed and with a knife in his hand went towards his child's cradle.

The poor mother, struck dumb by horror, sprang out to stop him, but the maniac was too quick for her. Shrieking aloud in his frenzy, and averting his face, he stabbed twice at the sleeping child before the frantic mother could intervene, and, mad with distress, snatch her little one from the crumpling bed clothes. Her joy was unutterable to find her baby unscathed. The child had been saved at the expense of its trespassing pet, which had received both thrusts.

ANTHRAX AMONG CATTLE

Cattle Owners Demand State Investigation to Prevent Return of Epidemic

Three separate outbreaks of that deadly plague of cattle, anthrax, in the vicinity of Barrington, this county, at intervals in a period of twelve or fifteen years are the cause of some mighty serious thought among the farmers and the state veterinary officials, and occasional outbreaks near Palatine and even nearer, at Rockefeller, have intensified the feeling that the disease must be hunted down and rooted out forever from Lake county.

When the plague broke out at or near Lake Zurich a couple of years ago its cause was traced to hides brought into one of the villages.

This time there is no cause assigned for the outbreak, but a strenuous search is on to uncover a cause.

Cattle die within a very few hours after contracting the plague. After they are dead great drops of blackened blood ooze through the hide and stand out then flies come along or other cattle nose the bodies and the plague is spread.

It is claimed that vaccination of lymph treatment fail to make the cattle safe.

All that is being done is to burn the bodies of the afflicted cattle and bury the remnants. Then too, the cattle even exposed to the disease are killed under direction of the state and the owners indemnified for their loss.

In connection with anti-anthrax treatment, there is a strong sentiment against the tuberculin test in western and south western Lake county and farmers are urging that the state indemnify them for cows killed by reason, they allege, of undergoing the tuberculin test.

They wish to be indemnified the same as for cattle exposed to anthrax.

JAY GRAHAM MAKES RECORD IN HANDICAP

Shooting with unerring aim from the sixteen yard mark, Jay Graham, the amateur shooter of Long Lake, Ill., Tuesday broke 200 straight targets in the first days events of the first annual grand Chicago Gun club traps, One Hundred and Twenty-third street and Michigan avenue.

Although this is not a world's nor a state record, it is the best performance ever registered at the club's traps or at the old club at Watson's park, which was known as the Burnside club in the old days. W. D. Stannard of Chicago held the previous marks at both clubs by making a straight score of 168 on the new range and 348 at the old traps.

VOTERS IN 10TH DISTRICT AWAKENING-REBELLION AGAINST CANNONISM FOSS IS DOOMED

(From The Waukegan Gazette of August 25)

The Gazette considers this one of the most important political announcements it has ever made and it is only made after most careful consideration of the whole situation in the matter of Congress in this, the Tenth Congressional District, now represented in Congress by George Edmund Foss.

For many years, under previous management and under the present management, the Gazette has favored Mr. Foss for the congressional seat, believing he had done his best and had done about as well as any man could have done during those years.

But, Mr. Foss' alliance with the Cannon-Aldrich gang at Washington, his apparent opposition to the principles advocated by Theodore Roosevelt, etc., have caused the Gazette to change its views with reference to his candidacy and we believe that it is time that he be retired in the interests of the people not only of this district but of the whole United States, for the handwriting is on the wall—the men who stand for Cannon and Aldrich are being relegated because of their failure to look after the common people's interests.

Mr. Foss has always laid claim to being the man who was directly responsible for these two things:

1—Waukegan's harbor.
2—The location of the Naval Training Station at North Chicago.

He has always pointed to these things as the main reason why Lake county should be for him for all time to come.

But, as everybody knows who thinks and who remembers, Mr. Foss really had little to do about getting the big appropriations for the local harbor; everybody knows that, had it not been for the great power and influence which the E. J. & E. and the American Steel and Wire Company possessed through the big moneyed men who control them, Waukegan's harbor would likely not even now amount to much. It was those men who did the business which got the money for the harbor—Mr. Foss, as congressman, (as any other man who held the job would have had to do) merely introduced the bills after these big men had made it certain that the measures would carry.

Therefore, where does Mr. Foss come in for the great credit there?

Secondly, in the matter of a Naval Training Station: If it had not been for Graeme Stewart and the Chicago Commercial Club, the station would not have been located at North Chicago. Mr. Foss' part in this matter was merely secondary. Mr. Stewart, through his hard work (which ultimately brought on his death) went out and raised the money with which to purchase the site at North Chicago for the great school. The Commercial Club then presented the site to the government free and the government saw a good business deal and located the school there. Mr. Foss naturally, as it was in his district, did what he could in the matter but the credit for locating the school must descend to Graeme Stewart and the Chicago Commercial Club, for, had the site not been given free, had not the big men comprising the club in Chicago rallied to the front and insisted on getting the school, the chances are it would now be in course of construction some place else.

But, Mr. Foss has not hesitated in declaring that HE made the harbor possible, that HE landed the Training Station, etc., and many have allowed him to continue making himself feel good by repeating the claims publicly.

However, the time has arrived when the facts must come out and the Gazette unhesitatingly calls attention to them now, believing that the voters of the district should know just where things stand in this, the opening of the hottest congressional fight in the Tenth District that has been on in many years.

Mr. George P. Englehard, Mr. Foss' opponent, is a strong anti-Cannon-Aldrich man, he stands for the people, he is a man high in esteem in Evanston and he is a fighter in the interests of the people. He has been the foremost man in civic work in Evanston, he is the man who fought to a standstill the famous Humphrey railroad bills at Springfield, he is the man who stands for Theodore Roosevelt and his ideas; Mr. Englehard is progressive and does not boast of many important things he has done for Evanston yet residents there declare he is one of the city's most valuable and highly esteemed residents.

Lake county is dead against Cannon and all that it means, and Mr. Foss made a serious mistake when he allowed himself to become so prominent in his support of Joe and his tactics. He showed a very weak spot in that regard but showed where his heart lies. The independence of his brother Eugene, in Congress, has brought attention to the Foss family in the east and detracted from the work of the family in the west, in fact, Eugene has overshadowed George because he has come out for progressive ideas and against Cannonism, etc., while George has fussed along believing that the people would continue to stand for him just because he was George Edmund Foss and not for anything he has done.

The people have started thinking however, in this district as well as all over the land and the awakening will mean that there will be a new man in Congress in the Tenth this year.

You hear it all over the county of Lake, you hear the dissension against Mr. Foss and the way he has managed things. The time for a reckoning is here.

The people have awakened!

INJURIES INFLICTED BY TRAIN PROVE FATAL

Joseph Hacek died Wednesday morning at his home at Libertyville as the result of injuries sustained about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon when he was struck by a train on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad at Rondout.

Hacek was in company with his sister driving along the road when they came to the Rondout crossing and not perceiving the approach of the train drove upon the track ahead of it, and although both were thrown violently to the ground the sister was uninjured.

At first it was not thought that Hacek was badly injured and he was taken to his home at Libertyville. But later it developed that he had received internal injuries of a serious nature and his death occurred Wednesday morning.

OLD COUPLE TO REMARRY

Unique Romance Between McHenry Piar to Reach Climax Thursday

Wedded in their youth, subsequently separated by divorce and reunited in second marriage in ripe old age is the story of a romance which will be culminated Thursday by Wilbur Bassett and Mrs. Jennie Haeger, well known residents of McHenry and both nearly seventy years of age.

The marriage will be celebrated at Aurora. They were divorced twenty years ago.

Since their divorce each of the principals in this unusual romance has been married. Mrs. Haeger's second husband died seven years ago. Bassett's second wife died four months ago. Then the fires of the first love were again kindled, and the second wooing was begun by Bassett.

Bassett has been living on the old farm west of McHenry. Since her husband's death Mrs. Haeger has had a dressmaking shop in McHenry. The couple had two children. A son, Eber, is a rural mail carrier out of McHenry. A daughter is dead but she was survived by a daughter, Elsie Jeffries, and who has been doing the housework for her grandfather Bassett since the death of his second wife four months ago. And this granddaughter was the connecting link in the pretty little romance which has become woven about the sunset stage of the lives of the elderly couple.

Miss Jeffries was a constant reminder for Bassett of the old bond between himself and the love of his youth. Bassett began to stop his milk wagon in front of the dressmaking shop when he made his morning trip to McHenry. The wooing was on. They forgot the troubles which had separated them and were willing to join hands again for the final lap of the journey through life.

MISS CULVER TAYS TAXES ON $532,930

Timothy Howe, assessor for Shields township, takes strong exception to the statement that J. Ogden Armour is the biggest tax payer in Lake county. He produces figures to show that Miss Helen Culver, who lives just outside the city of Lake Forest, pays taxes on more than $100,000 more property than Mr. Armour.

The total amount of property upon which Mr. Armour pays taxes in Lake county is $433,848. Miss Culver pays taxes upon $535,930 worth of property, according to Mr. Howe. This is $102,082 more property than that paid upon by Mr. Armour. On the amount of property assessed up on, $511,800 worth of Miss Culver's property is personal.

RELIEF FOR AGED HORSES

One of the pleasant signs of the times is the growing disposition, manifested in many quarters and through many agencies to remember the ancient proverb, that "a merciful man will be merciful to his beast."

In its efforts to bring about the humane disposal of old or worn-out horses the Boston work horse parade association is meeting with encouraging success, the Globe of that city says, and it believes that disabled or superannuated horses, especially such as are owned by large concerns and by city governments, ought not to be sold.

Many of the larger corporations never sell an old or worn-out horse; others see that they fall into good hands when they dispose of them, and still others graduate their horses to lighter work as equine old age comes on.

There is an old-age pension scheme for horses in this country. In several European countries the problem is solved by eating the horse—a more compassionate method of treating him than keeping him at work until he drops in his tracks. "I that am cruel am yet merciful," said the Moor of Venice.

INJURY RESULT IN DEATH

William Gallagher Dies From Effects of Shot From Gun in Hands of Neighbor

MEYERS IS UNDER ARREST

Driven to Desperation by Franks of the Gang Meyers Fires Shot Into Crowd With Fatal Result

William Gallagher, a young man living at Wadsworth, died at the Jape McAlister hospital in Waukegan at seven o'clock Monday morning, from the effects of a bullet wound in his neck said to have been inflicted by a gun in the hands of Matt Meyers on the evening of August 20, when the victim with several friends went to the Meyers home to charivari him for a wedding that had taken place six months previous.

It will be remembered that Meyers is the man who objected so strenuously when several young men living in the neighborhood went to his home to charivari him when he was married six months ago. Since that time it is said that the "boys" have lost no chance to tease him about the affair, and it is said they would often stop him on the street and offer their congratulations.

On the night on which the shooting occurred several young men one of whom was Gallagher, went to the Meyers home, a mile west of Wadsworth and again started to charivari him. According to statements Meyers rushed from the house, discharging his gun as he reached the road. The bullet took effect in Gallagher's neck.

He was taken home at once and Dr. Jamieson of Millburn was summoned. He stated upon examination that the bullet had narrowly missed the jugular vein and had lodged in the rear of the skull. When interviewed Dr. Jamieson expressed the opinion that Gallagher would recover in case blood poison did not develop.

Gallagher grew worse, however, and was removed to the McAlister hospital in Waukegan where his death occurred Monday morning.

Tuesday morning Meyer was taken before Justice Welch on the charge of murder sworn out by State's attorney Dady and the case was continued to Thursday. As the charge of murder is not bailable Meyer was lodged in the county jail. He is much cut up over the affair and regrets that accident or no accident he is in an way responsible for Gallagher's death.

Friends of Meyer declare that he will never be convicted. They claim that this is a case where a man was harassed and driven to desperation and that anything that he may have done was justified because of a concerted effort to put him out of business and even drive him mad. However friends of Gallagher assert that the shooting was not justified and it now remains for the courts and the coroner's jury to decide what they think about the matter.

Here are a few of the things that Meyer and his friends point out as arguments for his side of what promises to develop the worst feud that that vicinity has seen in years.

One—On his wedding night only the intercession of Father Foley is said to have saved him from a lynching scare. The priest insisted that the crowd leave Meyer alone, which they finally did after destroying much of his fencing, garden, etc.

Two—The gang took him to the barn on the night of his wedding and sticking his head in the barn door closed it enough to hold him as in a pillory of old. Three—While at a neighbor's one evening the gang took the nuts off the wheels of the buggy and allowed him to meet with a bad accident when he started home.

Four—Recently the gang again got together and going to a neighbor's where Meyer was working they took him to the river bank, tied a rope around his waist and let him down, drawing him back just as he thought that he was going to drown.

Five—The trouble grew to such an extent that through the efforts of the gang Meyer was unable to procure help for threshing. The neighbors refusing to help for word had been passed that if anybody helped him this year, they in turn would not be given help next year. Thus, it is claimed, things went on until Meyer driven to desperation, met the gang with a revolver, fearing that his own life was in danger.

The Courage of Captain Plum

By

CURWOOD

SYNOPSIS.

Captain Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver Island, Lake Michigan, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, an eccentric old man and counselor of the Mormons, who has been spying on him, suddenly confronts him and tells him he is expected. Plum insists he has got the wrong man. Price ignores his protestations and bargains for the ammunition on board the sloop. He binds Nat by a solemn oath to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. He agrees to show Plum the Mormon town, St. James. Plum sees the frightened face of a young woman in the darkness near Price's cabin. She disappears, leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Plum's visit to Beaver Island is to demand settlement from the king, Strang, for the looting of his ship some time previously by men whom he suspected of being Mormons. Burke, his mate, has been left in charge of the sloop with orders to bombard St. James if the captain does not return within a certain time.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

"Nat, you've got good red blood in you," he cried, whirling about. "Dye suppose you can hate as well as love?" "Lord deliver us!" exclaimed the astonished Captain Plum. "Hate—love—what the—"

"Yes, hate," repeated the old man with fierce emphasis, "so close that his breath struck Nathaniel's face. 'You can love a pretty face—and you can hate. I know you can. If you couldn't I would send you back to your sloop with the package tonight. But as it is I am going to relieve you of your oath. Yes, Nat, I give you back your oath—for a time.'"

Nathaniel stepped a pace back and put his hands on his pockets as if to protect the gold there.

"You mean that you want to call off our bargain?" he asked.

The counselor rubbed his hands until the friction of them sent a shiver up Nathaniel's back. "Not that, Nat—O, no, not that! The bargain is good. The gold is yours. You must deliver the package. But you need not do it immediately. Understand? I am lonely back there in my shack. I want company. You must stay with me a week. Eh? Lilacs and pretty faces, Nat! Ho, ho!—You will stay a week, won't you, Nat?"

He spoke so rapidly and his face underwent so many changes, now betraying the keenest excitement, now wrinkled in an ogreish, bantering grin, now almost pleading in its earnestness, that Nathaniel knew not what to make of him. He looked into the beady eyes, sparkling with passion, and the cat-like glitter of them set his blood tingling. What strange adventure was this old man dragging him into? What were the motives, the reasoning, the plot that lay behind this mysterious creature's apparent faith in him? He tried to answer these things in the passing of a moment before he replied. The counselor saw his hesitancy and smiled.

"I will show you many things of interest, Nat," he said. "I will show you just one tonight. Then you will make up your mind, eh? You need not tell me until then."

He took the lead again and this time struck straight down for the town. They passed a number of houses built of logs and Nathaniel caught narrow gleams of light from between close-drawn curtains. In one of these houses he heard the crying of children, and with a return of his grisly humor Obadiah Price prodded him in the ribs and said:

"Good old Israel Laeng lives there—two wives, one old, one young—11 children. The Kingdom of Heaven is open to him!" And from a second he heard the sound of an organ, and from still a third there came the laughter and chatter of several feminine voices, and again Obadiah reached out and prodded Nathaniel in the ribs. There was one great, gloomy, long-built place which they passed, without a ray of light to give it life, and the counselor said: "Three widows there, Nat—fight like cats and dogs. Poor Job killed himself." They avoided the more thickly populated part of the settlement and encountered few people, which seemed to please the counselor. Once they overtook and passed a group of women clad in short skirts and loose waists and with their hair hanging in braids down their backs. For a third time Obadiah nudged Captain Plum.

"It is the king's pleasure that all women wear skirts that come just below the knees," he whispered. "Some of them won't do it and he's wondering how to punish them. Tomorrow there's going to be two public whippings. One of the victims is a man who said that if he was a woman he'd die before he put on knee skirts. After he's whipped he is going to be made to wear 'em. By Urim and Thummim, isn't that choice, Nat?"

He shivered with quiet laughter and dived into a great block of darkness where there seemed to be no houses, keeping close beside Nathaniel. Soon they came to the edge of a grove and deep among the trees Captain Plum caught a glimpse of a lighted window. Unusual caution. He approached the light slowly, pausing every few steps to peer guardedly about him, and when they had come very near to the window he pulled his companion behind a thick clump of shrubbery. Nathaniel could hear the old man's subdued chuckle and he bent his head to catch what he was about to whisper to him.

"You must make no noise, Nat," he warned. "This is the castle of our priest, king and prophet—James Jesse Strang. I am going to show you what you have never seen before and what you will never look upon again. I have sworn upon the Two Books and I will keep my oath. And then—you will answer the question I asked you back there."

He crept out into the darkness of the trees and Nathaniel followed, his heart throbbing with excitement, every sense alert, and one hand resting on the butt of his pistol. He felt that he was nearing the climax of his day's adventure and now, in the last moment of it, his old caution reasserted itself. He knew that he was among a dangerous people, men who, according to the laws of his country, were criminals in more ways than one. He had seen much of their work along the coasts and he had heard of more of it. He knew that this gloom and sullen quiet of St. James hid cut-throats and pirates and thieves. Still there was nothing ahead to alarm him. The old man dodged the gleams of the lighted window and slunk around to the end of the great house. Here, several feet above his head, was another window, small and veiled with the foliage of a vine that clung in dense masses to the log wall. With the assurance of one who had been there before the counselor mounted some object under the window, lifted himself until his chin was on a level with the glass, and peered within. He was there but an instant and then fell back, chuckling and rubbing his hands.

"Come, Nat!"

He stood a little to one side and bowed with mock politeness. For a moment Captain Plum hesitated. Under ordinary circumstances this spying through a window would have been repugnant to him. But at present something seemed to tell him that it was not to satisfy his curiosity alone that Obadiah Price had given him this opportunity. Would a look through that little window explain some of the mysteries of the night?

Breathlessly He Looked In.

There came a low whisper in his ear.

"Do you smell lilac, Nat? Eh?"

The counselor was grinning at him. There was a suggestive gleam in his eyes. He rubbed his hands almost fiercely.

In another instant Captain Plum had stepped upon the object beneath the window and parted the leaves. Breathlessly he looked in. A strange scene met his eyes. He was looking into a vast room, illuminated by a huge hanging lamp suspended almost on a level with his head. Under this lamp there was a long table and at the table sat seven women and one man. The man was at the end nearest the window and all that Nat could see was the back of his head and shoulders. But the women were in full view, three on each side of the table and one at the far end. He guessed the man to be Strang; but he stared at the women and as his eyes traveled back to the one facing him at the end of the table he could scarcely repress the exclamation of surprise that rose to his lips. It was the girl whom he had encountered at the counselor's cabin. She was leaning forward as if in an agony of suspense, her eyes on the king, her lips parted, her hands clutching at a great book which lay open before her. Her cheeks were flushed with excitement. And even as he looked Captain Plum saw her head fall suddenly forward upon the table, encircled by her arms. The heavy braid of her hair, partly undone, glistened like red gold in the lamplight. Her slender body was convulsed with sobs. The woman nearest her reached over and laid a caressing hand on the bowed head, but drew it quickly away as if at a sharp command.

In his eagerness Nathaniel thrust his face through the foliage until his nose touched the glass. When the girl lifted her head she straightened back in her chair—and saw him. There came a sudden white fear in her face, a parting of the lips as if she were on the point of crying out, and then, before the others had seen, she looked again at Strang. She had discovered him and yet she had not revealed her discovery! Nathaniel could have shouted for joy. She had seen him, had recognized him! And because she had not cried out she wanted him! He drew his pistol signaled for him, if she called him, from its holster and waited. If she would burst the window. The girl was talking now and as she talked she lifted her eyes. Nathaniel pressed his face close against the window, and smiled. That would let her know he was a friend. She seemed to answer him with a little nod and he fancied that her eyes glowed with a mute appeal for his assistance. But only for an instant, and then they turned again to the king. Not until that moment did Nathaniel notice upon her bosom a bunch of crumpled lilacs.

From below the iron grip of the counselor dragged him down.

"That's enough," he whispered. "That's enough—for tonight." He saw the pistol in Nathaniel's hand and gave a sudden breathless cry.

"Nat—Nat—"

He caught Captain Plum's free hand in his.

"Tell me this, Obadiah Price," whispered the master of the Typhoon, "who is she?"

The counselor stood on tiptoe to answer.

"They are the wives of Strang, Nat!"

"But the other?" demanded Nathaniel. The other—

"O, to be sure, to be sure," chuckled Obadiah. "The girl of the lilacs, eh? Why, she's the seventh wife, Nat—that's all, the seventh wife!"

CHAPTER III.

The Warning.

So quickly that Obadiah Price might not have counted ten before it had come and gone the significance of his new situation flashed upon Captain Plum as he stood under the king's window. His plans had changed since leaving ship but now he realized that they had become hopelessly involved. He had intended that Obadiah should show him where Strang was to be found, and that later, when ostensibly returning to his vessel, he would visit the prophet in his home. Whatever the interview brought forth he would still be in a position to deliver the counselor's package. Even an hour's bombardment of St. James would not interfere with the fulfillment of his oath. But those few minutes at the king's window had been fatal to the scheme he had built. The girl had seen him. She had not betrayed his presence. She had called to him with her eyes—he would have staked his life on that. What did it all mean? He turned to Obadiah. The old man was grimacing and twisting his hands nervously. He seemed half afraid, cringing, as if fearing a blow. The sight of him set Nathaniel's blood afire. His white face seemed to verify the terrible thought that had leaped into his brain. Suddenly he heard a faint cry—a woman's voice—and in an instant he was back at the window. The girl had risen to her feet and stood facing him. This time, as her eyes met his own, he saw in them a flashing warning, and he obeyed it as if she had spoken to him. As he dropped silently back to the ground the counselor came close to his side.

"That's enough for tonight, Nat," he whispered.

He made as if to slip away but Nathaniel detained him with an emphatic hand.

"Not yet, dad! I'd like to have a word with this—"

"With Strang's wife," chuckled Obadiah. "Ho, ho, ho, Nat, you're a rascal!" The old man's face was mapped with wrinkles, his eyes glowed with joyous approbation. "You shall, Nat, you shall! You love a pretty face, eh? You shall meet Mrs. Strang, Nat, and you shall make love to her if you wish. I swear that, too. But not tonight, Nat—not tonight."

He stood a pace away and rubbed his hands.

"There will be no chance tonight, Nat—but tomorrow night, or the next, O, I promise you shall meet her, and make love to her, Nat! Ho, if Strang knew, if Strang only knew!"

There was something so slyly smiling in the counselor's attitude, in his face, in the hot glow of his eyes, that for a moment Nathaniel's involuntary liking for the little old man before him turned to abhorrence. The passion, the triumph of the man, convinced him where words had failed. The girl was Strang's wife. His last doubt was dispelled. And because she was Strang's wife Obadiah hated the Mormon prophet. The counselor had spoken with fateful assurance—that he should meet her, that he should make love to her. It was an assurance that made him shudder. As he followed in silence up out of the gloom of the town he strove, but in vain, to find whether sin had lurked in the sweet face that had appealed to him in its misery—whether there had been a flash of something besides terror, besides prayerful entreaty, in the lovely eyes that had met his own. Obadiah spoke no word to break in on his thoughts. Now and then the old man's insane chucklings floated softly to Nathaniel's ears, and when at last they came to the cabin in the forest he broke into a low laugh that echoed weirdly in the great black room which they entered. He lighted another candle and approached a ladder which led through a trap in the ceiling. Without a word he mounted this ladder, and Nathaniel followed him, finding himself a moment later in a small low room furnished with a bed. The counselor placed his candle on a table close beside it and rubbed his hands until it seemed they must burn.

CRIPPEN IN COURT

AMERICAN DENTIST AND GIRL COMPANION ARE JOINTLY CHARGED WITH MURDER.

SHOWS BODY IS IDENTIFIED

British Police Have New Evidence Concerning Victim, Supposedly the Doctor's Wife—Arraign—ment Mere Formality.

London, Eng.—Hawley H. Crippen, the American dentist, and Ethel Clare Leneve, his typist, were Monday accused of the murder of Belle Elmore, the former's wife, in the formal charge read to them in the Bow street police court.

The woman was charged also with harboring and maintaining Crippen after the crime and while knowing that he committed it.

Inspector Dew, who brought the prisoners back from Canada, introduced evidence to show that Crippen contemplated suicide while at sea following his flight from this country. Crippen was quoted as declaring that his companion knew nothing of the trouble in which he was involved.

The fact that both were accused of the murder of the actress-wife of the doctor leads to the supposition that the mutilated body has been identified to the satisfaction of the authorities. It also suggests that the police believe they have further evidence concerning the Leneve woman's connection with the tragedy than they have made known.

Dew closed his testimony by repeating a conversation with Crippen when the latter was exercising on the deck of the steamer Mergantic on the return to Liverpool August 24. Crippen said: "I want to ask a favor of you, but I will leave it until Friday." Friday was the day preceding the arrival of the vessel at Liverpool. The inspector replied: "As well now as Friday," Crippen then said:

"When you took me off the ship at Quebec I did not see Miss Leneve. I do not know how things will go. They may go all right; they may go all wrong. I may never see her again and I want to ask you to let me see her. I won't speak to her. She has been my only comfort for the last three years." Crippen was allowed to see his companion in trouble.

After the introduction of evidence against the accused persons they were remanded until September 6, without having pleaded.

DEATH THREAT IN I. C. CASE

Director of Ostermann Company Testifies to Intimidation to Prevent Car Fraud Narrative.

Chicago.—Hearing of the case against Frank B. Harriman, Charles L. Ewing and John M. Taylor, former Illinois Central officials charged with defrauding the company through car repairs, was resumed in Judge Bruggermeyer's court Monday.

Theophile Reuther, formerly a director of the Ostermann Manufacturing company, the first witness, testified that Henry C. Ostermann, president of the Ostermann company, had threatened to kill him if he (Reuther) told the story of the defrauding of the Illinois Central out of $1,000,000 through car repairs.

Reuther told of Ostermann's alleged attack upon him in the offices of the company when he threatened to disclose the gigantic steal.

Thefts of valuable records, confessions, letters, reports and other proofs of frauds, together with copies of important documents, came to light in the graft war as a rival to the $1,500,000 car-repair swindle.

Documents containing evidence against the men higher up in the huge fraud disappeared from the Illinois Central offices two months ago simultaneously with the discharge of an employee in the railroad's secret-service department.

Rev. F. G. Bingley, an evangelist, who preaches to the women of the levee, turned the bulk of the missing papers over to Murry Nelson, Jr., chief counsel for the Illinois Central, Monday.

"My boys, Paul, eleven years old, and Cecil, nine years old, found the papers floating in the river," said the evangelist.

Col. Roosevelt Is Snubbed.

Milwaukee.—"In view of the unscholarly and unfair position that Mr. Roosevelt has taken in the discussion of the movement for which I have spent all my spare time and energy, it is impossible for me to accept the intended honor." This is a portion of a letter of Mayor Emil Seidel, Socialist, to Frank Cannon, chairman of the Milwaukee Press club reception committee, in which the mayor declines to serve on the reception committee on the occasion of the visit of Colonel Roosevelt, who will be the guest of the Press club next week.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—The whirlpool inclined railway, the last of the inclines on the American side of the Niagara gorge, was destroyed by fire early Monday.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WELL?

The kidney secretions tell if disease is lurking in the system. Too frequent or scanty urination, discolored urine, lack of control at night indicate that the kidneys are disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

S. E. Vaughan, 601 E. South St., Iola, Kan., says: "Diabetes had set in and I expected to live but a short time. Kidney secretions were milky white and back pains were terrible. I was so dizzy my wife had to lead me. After trying everything else, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills and was soon helped. Continued use cured me." Remember the name—Doan's.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D. Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

"Krapen," a Great Oxen Race.

Near the eastern end of Java is a small island called Madura, the inhabitants of which are much addicted to sport. Every year they hold a great race for oxen known as the "Krapen," which is looked forward to with the utmost excitement, as a great deal of money changes hands over the result. The oxen used are magnificent beasts, and are decorated in a very striking fashion.

The driver sits on a small piece of plank, and from this lowly and precarious position guides and encourages his steeds. At a given signal the great brutes leap forward, racing for all they are worth, and traveling a good deal faster than one would expect. The victorious driver receives a handsome sum of money, and huge crowds always assemble to witness the contest.—Wide World Magazine.

BOLD ENEMY OF THE SNAKE

Unfortunately the Mongoose Also Has an Insatiable Appetite for Chicken.

"The loneliest living creature in the United States is undoubtedly the mongoose," was the statement made by Raymond L. Dittmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological park. "I believe that there are but two or three of the beasts in this country. Mongoose society, you might say, is not teeming with members. A mongoose is a pink-eyed, flexible-snouted little animal, with a shape like a debutante. He is chiefly waist, that is to say. He is partial to snakes, as a steady diet, or, perhaps, it might be better to say a wiggle or unsteady diet. He was one of the original 'catch-em-alive-Os.' A mongoose will kill almost any sort of an ordinary sized snake. Most of the constrictor family, however, are too big for him. But he's a bold mite of a furry creature and will tackle almost anything in the serpent line. A mongoose is easily domesticated and in many respects is quite as pleasing a pet as a cat or dog.

"The single objection to him is the fact that if he can't have his snakes he is only too willing to subsist on chicken. As a raider of henroosts a Maryland ducky is a neophyte compared with a mongoose. That is the reason there are so few of him in this country. There is a federal law which absolutely forbids the importation of a mongoose. It really is a pity that this most companionable of animals has to be barred from the country. But you simply couldn't keep a chicken in the same neighborhood with a mongoose. A mongoose would be sure to get at the henhouse as you might. A mongoose can go any place he chooses. If there isn't a hole, he imagines one and crawls through it. I'd like to keep one in the Bronx reptile house, but I couldn't afford to. He'd dine on my rarest snakes, despite anything I could do to prevent him."

American Folk Songs.

As yet no ballad writer has appeared in America that rivals Kipling or the pre-eminent Burns. The product we have from professed ballad singers is mediocre. But out in the far corners of the land there are to be found the folk songs, true ballads, whose authorship will never be known. The course of our national development and the inherent romance of the fields and forests has inspired the ordinary lyre to lofty songs. And the life of isolated communities, and the common if narrow interests of the men who work in gangs under all sorts of dangers have given rise to song and chant that savor of the blood. The English department of Harvard university has commissioned John A. Lomax, associate professor in College Station, Tex., under the Sheldon fellowship, to gather together these typical ballads. The old cowboy ditties, the chanteys of the coast, the gulf and the great lakes are what he wants. There are also army songs, lumberjack chants, the songs of voyageur, miner and vagabond. All these serve to characterize vividly life that is passing. And it may be that thorough search will reveal unsuspected treasures.

Cradle Unfashionable.

Cradles are going out; children are not wearing them any more. People tell us that rocking is unhygienic; babies, according to modern idea, should go to sleep naturally in a stationary germproof bed, with antiseptic pillows and a sanitized rattle. Sentiment may save the cradle for a little while, but sooner or later it will go to the dusty attic along with the haircloth sofa. Maybe the infant of tomorrow will bear up somehow under these accumulated misfortunes, will struggle along somehow to maturity, but what about the artists, the poets, the song writers. What a world of sentiment and melody has been woven around the theme of the mother and the gently rocking cradle! What kind of song will the poor poet of the future be able to make about an antiseptic iron crib with brass trimmings!—Success Magazine.

How Mean Man Turned to His Own Account the Latest Fad of His Wife.

"My wife has a new fad," announced the fat man with the red face as he cheerfully stirred the mixture before him with a long straw. "She is going in for hypnotism now, and it has my sincere and emphatic indorsement. She has taken 12 lessons from a noted professor of the art, and is now a full-fledged hypnotist—or thinks she is, which amounts to the same thing so far as she is concerned. I was her first subject, and her success with me not only pleased her, but astonished her as well. At first I rebelled at being experimented with, thinking it all tommyrot; but I am now prepared to indorse the art to its full extent. She got me in a chair and then, standing in front of me, went through a lot of monkey shins before my face with her hands.

"Now," she said sternly, 'you cannot leave your chair.'"

"Just to see what her game was I gave her the glassy eye and made no move. Her eyes gleamed with triumph, and then she said: 'Listen to me. You must no longer drink intoxicating liquor. If you do it will make you sick. You will find it impossible to lift a glass of the vile stuff to your lips. You cannot even enter a place where it is sold.'"

"Then she brought me out of the trance by snapping her fingers and announced that her experiment was a complete success.

"Now the dear woman remains at home serenely confident that I am no longer able to indulge in the flowing bowl, and my plea of being detained late at the office goes without question. Let's have another."

Unfamiliar Commodities.

"Any book in particular, sir?" asked the young woman in charge of the book counter of a large department store. "This is a great novel."

"Not for me," said the old gentleman, who had been examining the stock in trade with an air of considerable disapproval. "I'm looking for something less ephemeral. Where do you keep the classics, young woman? Lamb's 'Tales,' for example?"

The young woman looked puzzled. "Bacon?" said the old man. "Crabbe? Fox?"

THURSDAY, [SEPTEMBER 1, 1910

The Hendee heirloom is commencing to look more like a lemon every day.

Price at any price is a high price for the rest of us if he lands the job of County Treasurer.

The Illinois Central steals from the people and now its employees steal from the Illinois Central. That seems an even break.

The price of coal is going up but that doesn't make any difference to the Waukegan politicians. They are in for a hot time anyway.

Both of the Waukegan dailies seem to be out for Engelhard. Rays of intelligence pierce even the smoke of our benighted county seat.

Those were nasty questions that Engelhard asked Foss, but George must expect this kind of a thing if he is going to go against a live man.

There is a man in the southern part of the state running for the legislature by the name of Von Graft. That fellow ought to win on his nerve if nothing else.

Teddy Roosevelt is going to make a speech at Freeport. We always thought Rockford was the biggest toad in the puddle over that way but apparently we had another guess coming.

Ex-Senator Billie Mason is going to make speeches in Lake county for Mr.
Engelhard. Billie may not be much on writing books but when it comes to making political speeches he is an asset that any candidate is lucky to have.

If the millionaires were all for Shurt-leff he might look different to the rest of us, but the fact that they are all against him ought to make his nomination a sure thing because there are a whole lot of us who are not millionaires.

It wasn't Foss who got the Naval Training Station for Lake county after all. It was the late Graeme Stewart who did the business and Foss was merely around. That any lunkhead ever said Foss did it is the thing that makes us smile.

If you don't believe those Waukegan politicians love the honest farmer or the village man just let them talk to you a minute. But remember, hot air cools off quicker in Waukegan after an election than any other place south of Peary's North Pole.

Gentleman George refuses to acknowledge the challenge for a joint debate from Mr. Engelhard. Who could expect anything else. A man of the Foss ancestry meeting on the same platform one whose father or grandfather might be nothing more than a German immigrant—absurd.

We are to hear from Maine next. If Maine should go insurgent too we are almost prepared to have George Edmund Foss announce that his principle has overwhelmed him and he is ready to cast aside his dear good friend Uncle Joe. As a matter of fact, however, the word principle in this case should be spelled principal.

If you don't believe Hime Ferry is making people around in these parts like him, talk to your neighbors. He certainly strikes a good many voters over this way as being the man for the job. Ferry will make the kind of a county clerk that we are all looking for.
There is no fourflush about him, just a plain, straightforward every day man who is honest and square.

George Quentin is making an admirable canvass for the office of County Treasurer. That he deserves it there is no doubt and that he is going to get it almost seems a foregone conclusion.
We have too much of this passing it back and forth with a division of the fees to make the condition satisfactory to the people at large. We want new blood and with George Quentin it will not only be new but be good blood.

The fact that Elmer Green doesn't wear kid gloves is going a long way with the people out in the county. The elite of Waukegan are shocked that a mere workingman has the temerity to run for sheriff, but this is a good deal like Shurtleff and the millionaires; the more he has of that kind of enemies the more the rest of us think of him. Because a man works with his hands doesn't mean that he hasn't got brains or God pity the most of us.

Another thing we want to remember is that if Shurtleff goes back to the legislature that $20,000,000 waterways steal will have mighty hard sledding.
We wonder how the trust newspapers, that are opposing Shurtleff on the alleged ground that he is a friend of Lorimer's pet hobby the waterways grab. Come to think of it, it's plain enough. They, the trust newspapers, are more interested in butterine than Lorimer is in waterways, and there you have it.

A pretty safe hunch is to find out what the plutocrats want, then you want the other thing. If the said plutocrats happen to be in the business of making hog fat and beef suet into butterine then every man who owns a cow and wants to sell her milk ought not to wait until a house falls on him before he tumbles. In the case of the plutocrats club at Lake Forest which is fighting the nomination of Mr. Shurtleff, we think the man with the cow will not wait for the house to fall before he gets wise.

Armour the pork multi-millionaire denies before the board of review that he is a resident of Lake county where his big county estate is located. Not long since he denied before the Chicago board that he lived in Chicago where his winter mansion is to be found. What a contemptible exhibition this "respectable citizen" is making of himself to escape the payment of what would be only a few paltry dollars to him, to support the government that protects him in keeping the vast millions he has hoarded. He is a representative of the rest of them in that millionaires club at Lake Forest that have organized to defeat Edward D. Shurtleff for the state legislature.

A Butt In

A meeting was held at the fashionable Union League Club in Chicago the other evening by a few of the inordinately rich to devise ways and means to beat Edward D. Shurtleff for the legislature up here in our district. What we would like to know is, what business is it of these Chicago plutocrats what we do up here? Are the Armours and the Swifts and the Hebrew Morrisses going to dictate to us because we want a man who doesn't like their hog fat butter? Well, we guess not. Let them be satisfied with running the fake health department down there and we will know how to take care of our own without their butt in.

A Stitch in Time

Governor Deneen is coming up into Lake county to make a speech against Shurtleff. We would mildly suggest that the Governor hurry up to Chicago and see that the books of his good old friend, the Illinois Central, are properly doctored before they are allowed to appear in court in any grab scandal. That they are going to appear is a cinch and further that the rottenness of this rotten railroad company is so profound that a favor to it causes an entry on its books. It does business only in dollars and cents and the fact that the Governor was it's best friend when those tax cases involving millions, was dropped, makes us wish for the pride of the great state of Illinois that he stop and personally inspect those books and see that they are made right before he comes up here in Lake county and makes that speech against Edward D. Shurtleff.

Talk Is Cheap

The state legislative election is to take place this fall that is going to envolve the particular interests of Lake county more than any other that has happened for decades.

But this election which occurs in November is practically to be determined in the Republican primaries which are scheduled for September 15.

That the Republican nominees of September will be elected in November is a fore gone conclusion, therefore we say again the real result is at the primaries.

To brush all other quibbles aside the importance of the results of this contest lay wholly in one issue; that is will the dairy interests of this county be successfully protected against the onslaughts of the millionaire butterine men and the fake health department of Chicago in the next session of the Illinois legislature.

The men selected at these primaries are the ones we have got to depend upon for protection in resisting the attacks of these powerful antagonists to the well being of the whole dairy interests of the country.

That there is no doubt that there is one candidate that stands pre-eminently qualified to defend us in this time of need, we are practically all agreed.

His name is Edward D. Shurtleff.

Now the point made in the headline of this article that "talk is cheap" is this; you all get around and talk and say "oh yes, I am for Shurtleff, he is a friend of ours," but that is as far as it goes with you.

When it comes time for the primaries to be held you suddenly think you are awfully busy. There is more to do on the farm that day than any other day, and you think to yourself "oh well, neighbor Smith and Jones are going down anyway and that will make good for this section.

And may be Smith and Jones are figuring it the same way you are. How do you know, and then there would be nobody from your section.

The whole story is this, don't bother about talking, but go and vote at the primaries September 15.

It is better, many hundred times better that the cows are not even milked that day than that you take a chance, by your indifference, of allowing a tool of the butterine millionaires or of the fake Chicago health department of winning over Edward D. Shurtleff as a candidate for the Illinois State Legislature.

He considers the paramount issues this year are: The Initiative and Referendum; election of U. S. Senators by direct vote of the people, putting state employees under civil service, better protection of the dairy and agriculture interests, limiting a candidates expenses in seeking office, and making him show for what purposes spent and by whom contributed, more adequate primary law, removing the maximum liability of soul-less corporations and letting a jury of twelve men decide the issue, protection of Fraternal Life Insurance companies against Old Liners, deep water way only under Government supervision and a bond issue in this State only to the amount of benefits derived, arbitration of difficulties between employer and employee, employment of convict labor in public improvement, but never in conflict with free labor, curtailment of state expense, as the county is the unit, and has the expenses of criminals, care of the poor and insane. I believe that County Option is the most feasible plan for the control of the liquor question, as I believe in the good old American principle "No taxation without representation"; No more Jack-Pots or Lorimer deals, such as was pulled off at the last legislature, which was an everlasting disgrace to the state of Illinois and the Democratic party in particular.

ROOSEVELT FOR FEDERAL CONTROL

Believes Government Should Generally Be Leader in Conservation.

SAD EXPERIENCE IN EAST

Addressing Public Meeting in Denver, Ex-President Discusses Water Power, Coal Lands, Ranges and Forests—Powerful Plea for Conservation.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 29.—Colonel Roosevelt arrived in Denver from Cheyenne this morning, and after a parade in which representatives of the state and city, the Live Stock association and the Spanish War Veterans took part, was the guest of the Denver Press club at a cowboy luncheon at Overland park. In the afternoon he delivered a public address at the Auditorium and later spoke to the Spanish War Veterans, and then he was the guest of honor at a "round-up" dinner at Eljebel Temple.

Talks on Conservation.

Mr. Roosevelt's main address was on conservation, and was as follows: This country has shown definite signs of waking up to the absolute necessity of handling its natural resources with foresight and common sense. The conservation question has three sides. In the first place, the needless waste of the natural resources must be stopped. It is rapidly becoming a well-settled policy of this people that we of this generation hold the land in part for the next generation, and not exclusively for our own selfish enjoyment. Just as the farmer is a good citizen if he leaves his farm improved and not impaired for his children, and a bad citizen if he skims the land of its own soil, so the Nation behaves well if it treats the natural resources as assets which it must turn over to the next generation increased and not impaired in value, and behaves badly if it leaves the land poorer to those who come after us.

In the second place, the natural resources must be developed promptly, completely, and in orderly fashion. It is not conservation to leave the natural resources undeveloped. Development is an indispensable part of the conservation plan. The forests, the mines, the water powers, and the land itself, must all be put to use. The conservation plan is not a plan to deprive the men of today of their natural rights in the natural resources of the land. All it means is that we of this generation shall so use our rights as not to deprive those who come after us of their natural rights in their turn.

In the third place, so far as possible these resources must be kept for the whole people and not handed over for exploitation to single individuals. We do not intend to discourage individual enterprise by unwisely diminishing the reward for that enterprise. On the contrary, we believe that the men of exceptional abilities should have exceptional rewards up to a point where the reward becomes disproportionate to the service, and to the detriment of the people as a whole. We are for the liberty of the individual up to and not beyond the point where it becomes inconsistent with the welfare of the community. Thus our consistent aim is to favor the actual settler—the man who takes as much of the public domain as he himself can cultivate, and then makes a permanent home for his children who come after him; but we are against the man, no matter what his ability, who tries to monopolize large masses of public land.

State and Federal Control.

Now, to preserve the general welfare, to see to it that the rights of the public are protected, and the liberty of the individual secured and encouraged as long as consistent with this welfare, and curbed when it becomes inconsistent therewith, it is necessary to invoke the aid of the government. There are points in which this governmental aid can best be rendered by the states, that is, where the exercise of states' rights helps to secure popular rights, and as to these I believe in states' rights. But there are large classes of cases where only authority of the National government will secure the rights of the people; and where this is the case I am a convinced and a thorough-going believer in the rights of the National government. Big business, for instance, is no longer an affair of any one state; big business has become nationalized, and the only effective way of controlling and directing it, and preventing its abuses in connection with it, is by having the people nationalize this control in order to prevent their being exploited by the individuals who have monopolized the business. All commerce on a scale sufficiently large to warrant any control over it by the government is nowadays interstate or foreign commerce, and until this fact is heartily acknowledged and acted upon by both courts and legislative bodies, National and state alike, the interest of the people will suffer.

In the matter of conservation, I heartily approve of state action where under our form of government the state, and the state only, has the power to act. I cordially join with those who desire to see the state, within its own sphere, take the most advanced position in regard to the whole matter of conservation. I have taken exactly this attitude in my own state of New York. Where the state alone had power to act, I have done all I could to get it to act in the most advanced manner; and where the Nation could act, I have done all I could to get National action in the same direction. Unfortunately, in the east we have in this matter paid the penalty of not having our forest land under National control; and the penalty has been severe. Most of the states—although they are old states—have not protected their forests, each falling to act by itself, because the forest was really the common concern of all; and where action is the common concern of all, experience has shown that it can only be profitably undertaken by the National government.

As a result of the impossibility of getting such wise action by the several state governments in the east, we are doing our best to get National legislation under which the National government, at the expense of millions of dollars, shall undertake to do as regards the Appalachians and White Mountains of the east what it is now doing in the Rock Mountains here out west. It would be both a calamity and an absurdity for the National government now to do in the west the very thing that at a heavy pecuniary cost it is trying to undo in the east. By actual experience in the east we have found to our cost that the Nation, and not the several states, can best guard the interests of the people in the matter of the forests and the waters, and that if it fails to attempt this duty at the outset it will later on have to pay heavily in order to be allowed to take up the work, which because it is done so late, cannot be so well done as if it had been begun earlier.

Water Power. Take the question of the control of the water power sites. The enormous importance of water power sites to the future industrial development of this country has only been realized within a very few years. Unfortunately, the realization has come too late as regards many of the power sites; but many yet remain with which our hands are free to deal. We should make it our duty to see that hereafter the power sites are kept under the control of the general government, for the use of the people as a whole. The great should remain with the people as a whole, while the use is leased on terms which shall secure an ample reward to the lessee, which shall encourage the development and use of the water power, but which shall not create a private monopoly or permit the development to be antisocial, to be in any respect hostile to the public good. The Nation alone has the power to do this effectively, and it is for this reason that you will find those corporations which wish to gain improper advantage and to be freed from efficient control on the part of the public, doing all that they can to secure the substitution of state for National action.

There is something fairly common in the appeal made by many of these men in favor of state control when you realize that the great corporations seeking the privilege of developing the water power in Rocky Mountain states are at least partly owned outside that state as within it. In this country, nowadays, capital has a National and not a state use. The great corporations which are managed and partly owned in the older states, and which are most in evidence in developing and using the mines and water powers and forests of the new territories and the new states, from Alaska to Arizona, have been generally managed during the past two months at having arguments presented to me on behalf of certain rich men from New York and Ohio, for instance, as to why Colorado and other Rocky Mountain states should manage their own water power sites. Now these men may be good citizens according to their lights, but naturally enough their special interest obscures their sense of the public need; and as their object is to escape an efficient control, exercised in the interest of all the people of the country, they clamor to be put under the state instead of under the Nation. If we are foolish enough to grant their requests, we shall have ourselves to blame when they wake up to find that we have permitted another privilege to trench itself and another portion of what should be kept for the public good to be turned over to private purposes of enrichment. During the last session of congress bills were introduced to transfer the water power sites in the National Forests and the Public Domain to the states. I have been strongly in favor of these bills, and I am strongly in favor of them now. They are unwise, and that it would be disastrous to enact them into law. In substance their effect would be to free these great special interests from all effective control. The passage of such a bill would be a victory of the special interests over the general welfare, and a long backward step down the hill of progress we have of late been climbing.

Our people have for many years proceeded upon the assumption that the Nation should control the public land. It is to this assumption of National outlook that we owe our wisest land legislation, from the Homestead Law to the Reclamation Law. The wise use of our public domain has always been conditioned upon National action. The states can greatly help, but the Nation must take the lead, as regards the land, as regards the forests and waters; and perhaps peculiarly in the case of the waters, because almost all streams are really inter-state streams.

Coal Lands. The same principle applies with peculiar force to the coal lands, and especially to the coal lands in Alaska, where the location and ownership by the Federal government is so necessary, both for full and free industrial development in the west, and for the needs of the Pacific. The coal mines should be sold, not sold, and those who mine the coal should pay back a part of the profit to the people. It is the right and duty of the public to put a check upon the greed of the few, and the most vigilant trusteeship on that part of that branch of the Federal government in charge of the fuel resources of the United States.

The Neutral Ground.

Remember also that many of the men who protest loudly against effective National action, would be the first to turn round and protest against state action if such action in its turn became effective, and would then unhesitatingly invoke the law to show that the state had no constitutional power to act. Long experience has shown that it is by no means impossible, in cases of constitutional doubt, to get one set of judicial decisions which render it difficult for the nation to act, and another set which render it impossible for the state to act. In each case the privileged beneficiaries of the decision invoke the aid of those who treat the public good, not as a healthy aid to growth, but as a fetter to prevent growth; and they assail the advocates of wise and cautious progress as being opponents of the Constitution. As I have said before, I am a strong believer in an efficient national action, where such action offers the best hope of securing and protecting the interest of the whole people as against the interest of a few. But I am emphatically against any action, where state action will best serve this purpose; and I am no less emphatically in favor of cordial and hearty co-operation between the nation and the states where the two are identical or overlap.

If there is one thing which is more unwise than another, it is the action, by legislative, by executive, or by judicial action of a neutral ground in relation to the state nor the nation has power, and which can serve as a place of refuge for the lawless man of great wealth, who can hire the best legal talent to advise him how to keep his abiding place equally distant from the uncertain frontiers of both state and National power.

The Open Range.

I am here at the invitation of the Colorado Livestock association, and I desire to express my appreciation of their steadfast stand for decency and progress in the handling of the public lands and national forests. They have met and overcome the unrelenting opposition of some of the most influential stockmen of the state; they have won because they have been right. I want to express also my appreciation of the work of the American National Livestock association. It has been one of the really important forces working toward effective railway regulation, while its support of the policy of federal range control has given it a large place in national affairs. As an old-time stockman I realize that the present order of things on the open range cannot continue, and that the sure way to protect the range itself, prevent the increase of big outfits, promote the equity of the grazing lands, and foster genuine homestead settlement, is to extend over the open range a system of range control somewhat similar to that now in effect on the national forests.

Whatever system of range control may be adopted in detail, there are two important things it must not do. It must not handicap or exclude the small man by requiring him to spend more money for fences than he can afford, and it must leave every acre that can be settled by bona-fide homesteaders freely open to such settlement.

I do not believe that a single acre of our public lands should hereafter pass into private ownership except for the single purpose of homestead settlement, and I know that the stockmen stand with me in their desire to remove every obstacle from the path of the genuine homestead settler, and put every possible obstacle in the pathway of the man who tries to get public lands by misrepresentation or fraud, or by absolutely necessary on the agricultural lands. It is a least equally necessary on the mineral lands. It would be a calamity, whose baleful effect on the average citizen we can scarcely exaggerate, if the great stores of coal and other mineral fuels still owned by the people in Alaska and elsewhere should pass into the unregulated ownership of monopolistic corporations.

The Forest Service.

You progressive stockmen have stood heartily by the conservation movement, and with you have stood many others throughout the West, to whom large credit is due, such as the lumbermen of Washington, the irrigators in California, and the sheep raisers of the country life movement in and around Spokane. I want to make my acknowledgments in particular to the National Forestry association, which has supported the forest work of the government with such unselfish zeal. The forest service has enemies because it is effective. Some of its best work has been met by the bitterest opposition. For example, the forest has been a real service by blocking the road against the grabbers of water power, and again by standing like a rock against the demands of bogus mining claims. I have always done my best to help the genuine miner. I believe that one of the first duties of the government is to encourage honest mining and to protect the honest miner. It is equally important to enforce the law against the particularly dangerous class which makes its living off the public through fraudulent mining schemes.

Much of the opposition to the forest service, like much of the opposition to conservation, takes the form of direct misrepresentation. For example, the cry is often heard that the national forest is a hindrance to agriculture, that the agricultural lands are thus put beyond the reach of settlement. This statement seems plausible only till the facts are known. In the first place, congress has provided that whatever agricultural land there may be in any national forest shall be open, under proper safeguards, to homestead settlement. And in the second place, when the opponents of conservation are asked to point out the great agricultural lands inclosed agricultural land on the ground and in the presence of experts, instead of in speeches in a hall, they fail.

Reclamation Service.

The National Reclamation Service is to hold a session in the city of Pueblo late in September. I am keenly sorry that I could not have accepted the invitation to be present. I must, however, be in the East at that time. But since I cannot be present, let me express my keen, long-held, and deep interest in the reclamation of arid lands by the federal government. I desire to do so now. There is no more effective way of making for the making of homes than the United States Reclamation Service, and no government bureau while I was President had reached a higher standard of efficiency, integrity and devotion to the public welfare.

Like the Forest Service, the Reclamation Service has clashed with certain private interests, and has had to pay the penalty of its service to the public in the form of bitter opposition from those whose profit it has interfered. The cry has been raised against it that the government must not do for its citizens at a less cost what private interests are ready to do for themselves at a higher price. Now, I believe fully in a higher price, but I believe also in the private development of irrigation projects which the government cannot undertake. There is a large and legitimate field for such work. It is the right and duty of the government to make the best use of the lands, not to let the profit from the necessities of the men who make those homes. There is no more warrant for objecting to the reclamation of arid lands by the government than there would be to object to the government for patenting agricultural lands directly to the actual settler, instead of through a middleman, who could make a profit from the transaction. The men who assert themselves as the cost of the community instead of by service to the community we have always had with us, and doubtless we always shall. But there is no reason why we should yield to them. The Reclamation Service has not done so, and that is the chief reason for the attacks upon it.

I don't think that there is one among you who is a better and more thoroughgoing westerner than I am. There has been a great deal of talk about conservation policies so welcome as that which came from the west, and none in the west more welcome than that which came from Colorado. There are men and organizations in Colorado, and I mention Delta in particular, who support the conservation policies which have been of the greatest value to the Nation. It has not always been an easy thing for them to stand for the real ultimate good, as against the seeming temporary good; but they have stood for it steadily nevertheless.

From the standpoint of conservation the east has wasted much of its own superior resources, and as a lover of the west, I hope that the west will profit by the east's bitter lesson, and will not repeat the mistakes of the east. The east has wasted its resources, it has given to the west a waste, which now puts it at a disadvantage compared to the west, and it is sorry. Most of the capital and very many of the men now attempting to monopolize the western resources are from the east. The east should be made to remember that conservation in the west will help the west first and most, and that the movement for conservation is most earnest and vigorous and most effective in the west and among western men. That is one strong reason why the conservation policy has come to stay.

Frequent Changes of Name.

The political rechristening of streets in Paris is outdone by the case of the Island of Reunion, which changed its name four times in just over half a century. In 1793 it was Bourbon, as it had been for a century and a half, but the convention then changed it to Reunion. Under the empire it became Ile Bonaparte, at the restoration it reverted to Bourbon, and finally, in 1848, it became Reunion once more. So the septagenarian islanders of this last year could recall an unparalleled series of compulsory changes. They must have thought themselves lucky a few years later when the second empire refrained from Bonapartizing this island again.

THE BLIND SENATOR

Marvelous Career of Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma.

How He Won His Fight Against Poverty and Adversity, and Achieved His Early Ambitions in Spite of Obstacles.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—No man in public life today has had a more remarkable career than Senator Thomas Pryor Gore of Oklahoma, whose charges of attempted bribery in connection with the sale of Indian lands stirred the country and brought about investigation by a congressional committee. Marvelous almost beyond belief were the struggles of this blind man—blind from early youth—to reach the great goal of his ambition—a seat in the senate of the United States.

Senator Gore was born on a farm in Mississippi in 1870, later being taken to the village of Waltham, when the latter was created. At the age of eight one of his eyes was jabbed out by a playmate. But he still had one good eye left and his grief was forgotten when some friends told him one day that he had been appointed a page in the Mississippi legislature. This career was, however, ended three years after the first accident by a fate so cruel and unusual that it would have crushed the spirit of ninety-nine boys out of any hundred in the land. While experimenting with a toy cross-bow, he himself shot out his remaining eye.

He was now totally blind, and had to give up his pageship. For the next five years his chief diversion was to hear his sister and mother read to him. Then a normal school was opened at his home town, and he entered, his lessons being read to him at home and by his schoolmates.

A debating society was organized in this school and the blind boy joined and displayed a wonderful aptitude for debate. One day a companion found an old volume of the Congressional Record. Going to an old stable the companion would read to him the speeches of the lawmakers at Washington and then there entered Gore's breast the ambition to be a United States senator—an ambition that never left it, even in the darkest days that followed.

In 1891 his fame as a speaker had spread locally and he received many invitations to address farmers' picnics. The last day of 1895 he left Mississippi for Texas under a solemn vow never to return to it unless as a United States senator.

That year in Texas was a hard one. Gore threw himself into politics with passionate energy. Again and again the family was reduced to the verge of physical suffering. Yet year after year they kept up the fight for existence without complaint. Nor did the blind lawyer once despair of reaching the senate, writes James Creelman in Pearson's Magazine.

When Mr. Bryan was nominated at Kansas City in 1900 Gore found his way to the crowd that surrounded the convention. He managed to live in Kansas City for six days at a total cost of $3.50. No one who heard his voice ringing out over that scene of national enthusiasm was permitted to know, or even suspect, his poverty. Then he obtained an engagement in South Dakota to speak during the state and presidential campaigns. In this way he picked up $1,000 and with it went back to Texas and married.

The Gore's—including his father and brother—decided upon going to Oklahoma. In April, 1902, Gore managed to go as a delegate to the territorial convention that was to choose a delegate to congress from Oklahoma, and was given a seat in the territorial senate. That summer the blind man had another terrible struggle to keep alive. One day in June he had only eight cents left. He held a war council with his wife to consider what they should do with the eight cents. It was decided that the money should be spent on postage in an effort to secure speaking engagements. The political fight had to be kept up at any cost.

The fight for a seat in the United States senate was now pressed systematically. Gore spent the year 1903 in widening his acquaintance, attending picnics, barbecues and county fairs, securing for anything from $5 to $25, shaking hands with the crowds and smiling his way into their hearts. His friends wanted him to abandon his ambition for a time and run for congress. "It is the senate or nothing," he replied.

Gore won his fight in the primary election and was elected to the United States senate by the legislature, drawing the short term. In 1908 he was re-elected.

COL. ROOSEVELT IN THE WEST

MAKES TWELVE SHORT TALKS ON FIRST DAY'S RUN.

Ex-President Hands Out Words of Advice to His Hearers on Various Subjects.

Chicago.—After a long and strenuous trip from Utica, Col. Theodore Roosevelt reached Chicago Thursday night, and after remaining in the city for two hours, he left on his special train for Cheyenne, Wyo.

The colonel was on the road from one o'clock in the morning without interruption excepting for a brief sortie from the train at Buffalo, where he had breakfast with the Elkhart club and again at Cleveland and Toledo, where he ventured out into the clamoring crowds.

The ex-president handed out words of advice to his hearers at the twelve stops where he made speeches. He talked about the pollution of the great lakes, declared in firm tones that it must be stopped, that the national government, acting in co-operation with the Canadian government and the state executives ought to start at once to stop the contamination of the lakes.

He came out upon his old stand for the severe punishment of the rich crooks, as he characterized them, but remarked with emphasis that he was just as much against the poor crooks and that they should be punished too. He wanted a square deal for all. "Only there is perhaps less excuse for the rich crook," was the colonel's qualification as he spoke to the crowds. Mr. Roosevelt assured his audiences that he would help all he could in bringing about what he called "clenching" of the corporations and the crooked man, saying:

"I will make the corporations come to time as I will make the mob. I insist on justice for all, rich or poor."

BIG CUT IN EXPRESS RATES

Illinois Railroad Commission Demands That Charges Be Reduced and Made Uniform.

Springfield, Ill.—Sweeping reductions in express rates within the state of Illinois were made here Saturday by the Illinois railroad and warehouse commission. Existing tariffs were slashed in two in many instances and on small packages the reduction is in excess of 50 per cent.

The promulgation of "express tariff No. 1" by the commission brings the fight of the state against the express companies to a crisis. The reduction is made effective October 15, and the companies are preparing for a final fight. They dispute the authority of the commission to regulate their business within the state and assert that either they will ignore the new tariff schedule or go into court and get an injunction restraining the commission from carrying its order into effect.

In a lengthy statement which the commission hands down with its tariff schedule the business methods of the express companies are severely arraigned. The existing rates are declared to be unreasonable and exorbitant as well as discriminatory in character, as it has been shown that the same companies charge different rates for the same service on different railroads.

Unlike the reductions which have been made in some states of a flat rate of 10 or 20 per cent., the Illinois commission has prepared a complete graduated tariff schedule, based on the weight of packages and on the distance they are carried within the state. The heavier reductions are made on small packages weighing less than 100 pounds, which constitute the bulk of the express business and in which the greater number of shippers are directly interested.

CONVICTS AT OLEO INQUIRY

Moonshiners Are Brought From Prison to Tell of Alleged Gigantic Conspiracy.

Chicago.—Investigation of charges of conspiracy to defraud the government made against manufacturers of butterine may begin before next Monday. William Broadwell and Samuel Driesbach, convicted oleo moonshiners who are now serving terms in federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and three other prisoners who were convicted in Milwaukee, Wis., for the same offense, were secretly brought to Chicago Wednesday in charge of a federal official. Their arrival at this time was unexpected.

New leads of investigation will, in all probability, be pursued by the industrial body in the examination of these witnesses, as the government is already in possession of signed confessions from Broadwell and Driesbach, telling, supposedly in full, their information concerning the existence of a conspiracy between big oleomargarine manufacturers and moonshiners to defraud the government.

LACK OF MONEY Was a Godsend in This Case.

It is not always that a lack of money is a benefit. A lady of Green Forest, Ark., owes her health to the fact that she could not pay in advance the fee demanded by a specialist to treat her for stomach trouble. In telling of her case she says:

"I had been treated by four different physicians during 10 years of stomach trouble. Lately I called on another who told me he could not cure me; that I had neuralgia of the stomach. Then I went to a specialist who told me I had catarrh of the stomach and said he could cure me in four months but would have to have his money down. I could not raise the necessary sum and in my extremity I was led to quit coffee and try Postum. "So I stopped coffee and gave Postum a thorough trial and the results have been magical. I now sleep well at night, something I had not done for a long time; the pain in my stomach is gone and I am a different woman."

"I dreaded to quit coffee, because every time I had tried to stop it I suffered from severe headaches, so I continued to drink it although I had reason to believe it was injurious to me, and was the cause of my stomach trouble and extreme nervousness. But when I had Postum to shift to it was different."

"To my surprise I did not miss coffee when I began to drink Postum. "Coffee had been steadily and surely killing me and I didn't fully realize what was doing it until I quit and changed to Postum."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Second Section of Montreal-Boston Express Telescopes First—Fire Breaks Out and Passengers Are Cremated.

Durand, Mich.—As the result of the rear-end collision between two sections of an east-bound Grand Trunk train two miles east of here, six persons are dead, seven seriously injured and three slightly hurt. No. 14, the Chicago-Montreal train, left Durand at 10:01 o'clock, but was stopped three miles east because of a breakdown on the engine. No. 4 left Durand, also eastbound, at 10:35 and crashed into the rear end of the standing train, splitting the rear sleeper in two and throwing its passengers and bits of wreckage to each side of the right of way. George Wilson, fireman of No. 4, says his train had gathered full headway and was running more than forty-five miles an hour when the accident occurred. He says there was no warning of the presence of No. 14, except one torpedo over which his engine

MULFORD IS VICTOR

PILOT OF LOZIER DRIVES AT ELGIN MOST SPECTACULAR AUTO RACE.

ONLY FOUR CROSS THE TAPE

Livingstone Is Second, Greiner Third—Winner Averages 62.5 Miles an Hour, Comes Close to Vanderbilt Cup Contest Time.

Elgin, Ill.—Ralph Mulford, driving a Lozier car, won the Elgin national trophy in a race of 305.03 miles Saturday at an average speed of 62.5 miles an hour before a crowd of 100,000 people. His driving was of the spectacular kind and when he finished he was cheered for fully five minutes.

Thirty-six times the blond driver circled the rough course of country roads—a course of eight miles 2,499 feet, or, roughly, eight and one-half miles—with but a single stop.

The remarkable feature of Mulford's run lies in the fact that he approached within three-tenths of a mile the maximum average in the classic Vanderbilt cup event of a year ago. That such a run could be made on country roads, with practically no preparation and for a much greater distance than that of the Vanderbilt cup race, is looked upon by experts as little short of marvelous.

Close behind the victorious Lozier was "Al" Livingstone, driver of a National, who broke another record in that his achievement was that of one man and one car in two successive races run at more than a mile a minute, in the first of which he was victor, and totalling more than 500 miles. Livingstone's record as second at the goal was 60.2 miles an hour for the entire run of 305.03 miles.

The third man, another driver of a National, was A. W. Greiner. His average time was 54.4 miles an hour, reduced far below those of the other two winners because of numerous stops for repairs and gasoline.

In addition to the numerous unexpected obstacles that were met in full view of the great throng of motor fans, demanding cool handling of cars and quick work on the part of the pilots, Livingstone was menaced by a danger of which none save his mechanic and himself was aware. He entered the race in a machine which carried two big cracks in its frame. Livingstone discovered the cracks

GOOD WORK IS PROGRESSING

Women in Every State Join Earnestly in Campaign Against Tuberculosis.

Four years ago the only active women workers in the anti-tuberculosis movement were a little group of about 30 women's clubs. Today 800,000 women, under the United States, are banded together against this disease, and more than 2,000 clubs are taking a special interest in the crusade. Not less than $500,000 is raised annually by them for tuberculosis work, besides millions that are secured through their efforts in state and municipal appropriations. Mrs. Rufus P. Williams is the chairman of the department that directs this work. In addition to the work of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Public Health Education committee of the American Medical association, composed largely of women physicians, has carried on an educational campaign of lectures during the past year in which thousands have been reached. The Mothers' congress, the Young Women's Christian association, and many unattached clubs bring the number of women united in the tuberculosis war to well over a million. There is not a state in the union where some work has not been done.

My body and face were covered with sores. One day it would seem to be better, and then break out again with the most terrible pain and itching. I have been sick several times, but never in my life did I experience such awful suffering as with this eczema. I had made up my mind that death was near at hand, and I longed for that time when I would be at rest. I had tried many different doctors and medicines without success, and my mother brought me the Cuticura Remedies, insisting that I try them. I began to feel better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment.

"I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and have taken four bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, and consider myself well. ## WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS

Wheat Yield in Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON.
Malden, Sask., Canada, Aug. 25, 1910.
"My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent for their son, and he has just taken up a homestead near them, and is perfectly satisfied to stop here."
—Leonard Douglas.

"Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last Spring in good shape with the stock and everything perfect here, and when I got here I was so pleased with the country I wanted to stay here as long as possible. I have a claim near Landis, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place. If there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again, and when we return to Canada will call at your office for our certificates."
Yours truly, H. A. Wile.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.
Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.
"I am going to Canada next week from here, and intend to make my home there. My husband has been here six weeks and is well pleased with the country. He wants me to come as soon as possible. He filed on a claim near Landis, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place. ## Don't Break Down

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause breakdowns. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. Is you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the matchless, tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c. at J. H. Swan's.

HIS PLATFORM

"I favor the economical expenditure of public monies and the immediate abolition of old time extravagant methods. I favor laws that will be beneficial for the farmers, dairymen and stock-raisers of this great commonwealth, the municipal control of gas, electric and water systems, the establishment of good roads and an economical system of expenditure for their permanent maintenance, convict labor to be used as far as possible. I favor the passage of laws that protect the members of fraternal insurance organization, against the encroachments of powerful old line insurance companies. In am opposed to any deep waterway legislation by this state until such time as the Federal Government assures its financial support of the project. I am for the rigid enforcement of laws governing the practice of medicine and surgery, and the enactment of such laws as will protect the people against unscrupulous practitioners. I believe there should be just and equitable measures of protection to employer and employee, the conservation of all our national resources, the encouragement, support and advancement of all our public, educational and charitable institutions, in order that they may be placed on the highest plane of efficiency."
